

Sun and wind made record 12% of world electricity

Coal remained the biggest source of power at 36%, the report says

CLIMATE

PARIS: Solar and wind energy surged to make a record 12% of the world's electricity in 2022, a climate think tank calculated in a report Wednesday—though coal remained the leading source globally.

Representative image of wind and solar power

The report provides the latest gauge of renewable energy growth as countries scramble to meet emissions targets to curb climate change and secure alternative power sources after gas-exporter Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022.

"Record growth in wind and solar drove the emissions intensity of the world's electricity to its lowest ever level in 2022," said climate and energy think tank Ember in its yearly Global Electricity Review.

Helping slow the rise in planet-heating emissions, power from wind turbines and solar panels was up to 12% from 10% in 2021 and 5% in 2015.

Renewable sources, including nuclear power, accounted for 39% of world electricity, the group estimated.

Solar generation rose by 24%, making it the fastest-growing electricity source for 18 years in a row; wind generation grew by 17%. More than 60 nations now generate more than 10% of their electricity from wind and solar.

However, other sources of clean electricity dropped for the first time since 2011 because of fall in nuclear output as well as fewer new nuclear and hydro plants coming online, the study said.

The rest came from fossil fuels that cause planet-warming carbon emissions: oil, gas, and coal, which was the biggest source at 36%.

With electricity demand continuing to rise, coal generation grew 1.1%—lower than expected, Ember said. Scientists and the International Energy Agency say use of these fossil fuels must be reduced sharply to reach the critical target of limiting global warming to 1.5°C.

Countries at the COP26 UN climate summit in 2021 agreed to "phase down" coal, the most polluting of the fossil fuels, but progress has been limited and new coal plants are planned, notably in India and China.

"We forecast that 2023 will see a small fall in fossil generation... with bigger falls in subsequent years as wind and solar grow further," Ember said. "That would mean 2022 hit 'peak' emissions. A new era of falling power sector emissions is close."

The report also highlighted that wind as well as solar energy will be required to maintain high growths for the next 10 years. Urgent work is also needed on ensuring that wind and solar can be integrated into the grid: planning permissions, grid connections, grid flexibility and market design.

Ember prepared the report after analysing electricity data from 78 nations which represented 93% of global electricity demand.

Digidog back in NY police dept

TECHNOLOGY

NEW YORK: New York City officials unveiled three new high-tech policing devices on Tuesday, including a robotic dog that critics called creepy when it first joined the police pack two-and-a-half years ago.

The new devices, which also include a GPS tracker for stolen cars and a cone-shaped security robot, will be rolled out in a manner that is "transparent, consistent and always done in close collaboration with the people we serve," said police Commissioner Keechant Sewell, who joined Mayor Eric Adams and other officials at a Times Square press conference where the security robot and the mechanical canine nicknamed Digidog were displayed. "Digidog is out of the pound."

Deadly three months for central Med migrants

ILLEGALS

ROME: The first three months of 2023 were the deadliest first quarter in six years for migrants crossing the central Mediterranean Sea in smugglers' boats, the United Nations migration agency reported on Wednesday, citing nations' delays in initiating rescues as a contributing factor.

The agency's report said the deaths of at least 127 people so far this year came in six incidents in which "delays in state-led rescues in the Central Mediterranean were a factor." The report's authors lamented the "complete absence of response" in a seventh situation, in which at least 73 migrants lost their lives.

The International Organization for Migration (IOM) documented 441 migrant deaths along the dangerous sea route between northern Africa and Europe's southern shores during January, February and March. In 2017, 742 known deaths were documented in the same period, while 446 were recorded in the first three months of 2015.

"The persisting humanitarian crisis in the central Mediterranean is intolerable," IOM Director General Antonio Vitorino, said.

"With more than 20,000 deaths recorded on this route since 2014, I fear that these deaths have been normalised," Vitorino said. "States must respond. Delays and gaps in state-led SAR (search-and-rescue areas) are costing human lives."

The IOM said it also was investigating several reports of invisible shipwrecks where there are no records of survivors' remains."
